NY Times Article: "Wildcat Ranch, Snowmass, Co: 12 Home Sites On 6,500 Acres" By Lettice Stuart, March 24, 1991, NYT

The largest ranch in the Aspen-Snowmass area, where developers once planned to build a ski resort and a town of 10,000 residents, is now being subdivided into 12 large home sites with price tags of $2 million to $5.5 million.

The actor Michael Douglas and a Houston real estate developer, Niel C. Morgan, won approval in December from Pitkin County planners to divide the 6,500-acre Wildcat Ranch into 12 lots of 500 to 540 acres each.

The fate of Wildcat, nestled in the Elk Mountain range adjacent to Snowmass Village Ski Resort and seven miles from Aspen, has concerned county officials and residents for years. It is the largest privately owned parcel in the county, and the 50-acre lake in its midst is the largest private body of water in the county.

Mr. Douglas and Mr. Morgan have been battling for permission to subdivide the ranch since 1989, when they bought it for $15 million from a group of Texas owners headed by the United States Secretary of Commerce, Robert A. Mosbacher.

The Mosbacher group bought Wildcat in 1975 from a financially troubled company that had planned to develop a ski resort for 10,000 people.

County officials had given that proposal preliminary approval, but then denied the Mosbacher group permission to build a ski resort with only 160 home sites in 1984.

The county's change of attitude resulted from years of watching open space diminish at Snowmass and Aspen.

A proposal by Mr. Douglas and Mr. Morgan to divide Wildcat into 35 home sites won initial county approval, but a cry of opposition from residents forced planners to reconsider.

Some opponents expressed concern for a herd of 200 elk and other wildlife living on the property. Others sought to block access to Sinclair Road, a winding residential street that is one of Wildcat's three access routes.

The developers ended the battle by dividing the property into 12 larger parcels, exempting it from many restrictions applied to subdivisions with lots smaller than 500 acres. More than 98 percent of the ranch will remain open space.

"We clearly have a legal right to use Sinclair Road and would have ultimately overcome the opposition, but this way we killed several birds with one stone," said Mr. Morgan. Having fewer but larger lots makes the property even more exclusive, he said.

Mr. Morgan and Mr. Douglas, each keeping one lot, expect that it will take four years to sell the rest of the sites.

Wildcat amenities will include a boathouse on the lake, 27 miles of riding trails, an on-site manager, security gates and a continuing wildlife management program.
